More academic work: For more (academic) details on this refer to the paper by Mary Kay Copeland (The emerging significance of values-based leadership: a literature review, 2014, International Journal of leadership studies). Also refer to the work of Howell and Avolio (1992), O'Connor, Mumford, and colleagues (1995), Rogers and Farson (1955), Conger and Kanungo (1988, ch. 11) and Bass and Steidlmeier (1999). One could also refer to the work of Ronald Heifetz on adaptive leadership highlighting the importance of bridging the gap between values we proclaim (our espoused values) and values we actually live by (that underpin our behaviors).

QUOTES

- “Integrity lies at the very heart of understanding what leadership is”. Badaracco and Ellsworth
- "If you would convince a man that he does wrong, do right. But do not care to convince him. Men will believe what they see. Let them see." Henry David Thoreau
- “Great leadership has more to do with character, courage, and conviction than it does with specific skills or competencies.” William A. Adams
- “The way to do is to be”. Lao Tzu
- "Nearly all men can stand adversity but if you want to test a man’s character, give him power." Abraham Lincoln
- “Leaders are authentically transformational when they increase awareness of what is right, good, important, and beautiful, when they help to elevate followers’ needs for achievement and self-actualization, when they foster in followers higher moral maturity, and when they move followers to go beyond their self-interests for the good of their group, organization, or society”. Bernard Bass
