QUOTES

- “The turbulent challenges of our time force all institutions and communities to renew and reinvent themselves. To do that, we must ask: Who are we? What are we here for? What do we want to create together?”- Otto Scharmer
- “Because our thin crust of order and stability could blow up at any time, now is the moment to pause and become aware of what’s rising from the rubble.” - Otto Scharmer
- “Leadership in this century means shifting the structure of collective attention at all levels.”- Otto Scharmer
- “Our society must move from ego-system to eco-system economics. This requires that we shift from ego-system silos to eco-system awareness that considers others and includes the whole.” - Otto Scharmer
- “The business that leaders are in today, is the business of transforming awareness... There is deep longing for more meaning, for connections.”- Otto Scharmer
- "...successful leadership depends on the quality of attention and intention that the leader brings to any situation. Two leaders in the same circumstances doing the same thing can bring about completely different outcomes, depending on the inner place from which each operates." - Otto Scharmer
- “The same problem affects our massive institutional failure: we haven’t learned to mold, bend, and transform our centuries-old collective patterns of thinking, conversing, and institutionalizing to fit the realities of today.”- Otto Scharmer
- “We need to let go of an old body of institutionalized collective behavior in order to meet the presence of our highest future possibility.” - Otto Scharmer
- “If we were to ask the question, ‘From what source does our action come?’ most of us would be unable to provide an answer.” - Otto Scharmer
- “To the degree that we see our attention and its source, we can change the system. But to do it, we have to shift the inner place from where we operate.” - Otto Scharmer
- “There is no reason why there should be poor people in the world, and I hope that one day we’ll be able to create a Museum of Poverty, so that children will ask how poverty ever could have existed and why we accepted it for so many years” - Muhammad Yunus
- “Letting reality take charge of us” - Jon Sobrino
